Motion for Subpoenas to GoDaddy.com, Inc for a Discovery and Disclosure of www.antiguasunonline.com.

I request a complete electronic restored copy from the most recent archived copies older than March 31, 2010 from GoDaddy.com for the Web site www.antiguasunonline.com.

I request all information concerning the type of server it was hosted on e.g. operating system, revision of the operating system, and any required support applications that would be needed to duplicate the entire web site.

I request all the permissions set to "www" or fully open permissions for all files and directories.

I request all directories, files, programs, and any other item needed to completely duplicate the Web site.

I would agree to a restore of the Web site in it's entirety for purposes of Disclosing and Discovery of evidence on GoDaddy.com servers and under a secure environment as long as I have full access to the site content for evidence for the entirety of this case.

(Exhibit 1) According to an article in the Antigua Observer, www.antiguaobserver.com, article titled "Sun Printing and Publishing folds" the company went out of business in April 2010.

(Exhibit 2) is an Internet who.is search for "antiguasunonline.com" showing that it was owned by Sun Printing and Publishing Ltd.

(Exhibit 3) shows that the last Internet Service Provider for www.antiguasunonline.com is GoDaddy.com Inc.

GoDaddy.com Inc
14455 N Hayden Rd #226
Scottsdale, Arizona 85260

The Web site www.aua-med.com uses many quoted articles from the Antigua Sun web site and requires these articles for evidence in this case.

(Exhibit 4) is the title of one article, quoted on www.aua-med.com, concerning a student from the American University of Antigua that was sexually assaulted on Antigua.

(Exhibit 5) is the body of the article also quoted on www.aua-med.com.

(Exhibit 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10) are comparisons of article titles quoted on www.aua-med.com from articles that were found by Internet searches.

(Exhibit 11) is an entry from www.state.gov; I quote "While the government generally respected the human rights of its citizens, there were problems in a few areas, including excessive use of force by police, poor prison conditions, violation of press freedom, societal discrimination and violence against women, and sexual abuse of children."

(Exhibit 12) is an Antigua Sun article titled "Police rape case gets new investigator". This article covered some of the concerns over the handling of the investigation of the female recruit that was raped at the training facility.

Sun Printing and Publishing folds

The last vestige of what was once the R Allen Stanford empire crumbled Friday afternoon, with the closure of Sun Printing and Publishing Company Limited for an indeterminable period.

The 46 members of the Antigua staff and four in St Kitts received letters that read, in part, "owing to circumstances beyond our control, the company will be unable to sustain operations in the immediate future."

Interestingly, a check on the St Kitts office, by an OBSERVER reporter, just after 3:30 pm yesterday as the staff in Antigua was receiving the news, revealed that up to that point, they were unaware of the development.

The letter noted that the directors, Stanford's fiancée Andrea Stoelker and Barbara Streete, are working with legal counsel "to explore possible options for a solution to our short and long term difficulties."

Antigua Sun Monday October 19 2009!
Three sentenced to jail for sex offences

Jeffers, 22, on 17 May, 2008, about 3 a.m., stopped a medical student at the American University of Antigua (AUA), while she was on her way home. Reports are the victim slowed down her vehicle in the vicinity of the Lion's Club when Jeffers jumped into her vehicle and told her to give him a ride. Jeffers directed the medical student to an area near a vacant lot where not too many houses were. She pulled over to the side of the road and stopped her vehicle, at which time Jeffers virtually pulled the lever of her car seat and jumped on top of her. He put his hands over her eyes and started to squeeze into her eyes with his fingers. Jeffers took off his clothes and threatened to kill the woman if she screamed. The young woman got a hold of the vehicle's cigarette lighter and tried to burn Jeffers with it. He, however, managed to knock it from her hand. Jeffers then placed his penis in the woman's face and told her to engage in oral sex. The victim pulled away her head, at which time the convicted man pulled off her blouse and panties. He held her down and as he was about to rape her, a security pickup with a number of police officers drove up. Upon seeing the lawmen, Jeffers ran from the vehicle and the area naked.

Antigua and Barbuda is a multiparty parliamentary democracy with a population of approximately 83,000. In the 2004 parliamentary elections, which observers described as generally free and fair, the United Progressive Party (UPP) defeated the ruling Antigua Labour Party (ALP), and Baldwin Spencer became prime minister. The civilian authorities generally maintained effective control of the security forces.

While the government generally respected the human rights of its citizens, there were problems in a few areas, including excessive use of force by police, poor prison conditions, violation of press freedoms, societal discrimination and violence against women, and sexual abuse of children.

RESPECT FOR HUMAN RIGHTS

Section 1 Respect for the Integrity of the Person, Including Freedom From:

- Arbitrary or Unlawful Deprivation of Life
There were no reports that the government or its agents committed arbitrary or unlawful killings.
- Disappearance
There were no reports of politically motivated disappearances.
- Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman, or Degrading Treatment or Punishment
The constitution specifically prohibits such practices, and the authorities generally respected these prohibitions in practice. Nonetheless, there were occasional reports of police brutality, corruption, excessive force, discrimination

Police rape case gets new investigator

News Articles Local

by Aarati Jagdeo

Due to concerns about a conspiracy to cover up the alleged rape of a 23-year old woman recruit, at the Police Training School in Longford, the Royal Police Force of Antigua and Barbuda stated that personnel changes have been made and a new lead investigator has been assigned to the case. The alleged incident took place on 28 Sept.

The police force, in a statement issued by its Strategic Communications Department yesterday, further assures the public that it is taking the allegation seriously and is investigating the matter.

They also addressed the allegation that there was an attempt to cover up the incident. "When it was reported, the incident was taken seriously and at no time was there any attempt to dismiss the matter. A full scale investigation was launched the very day the report was made," the statement noted.

The police force further assured that it was taking every measure to ensure that the investigation would be thorough and transparent. They went as far as assigning a new investigator to erase any remaining doubts that the report would be biased.

The police force, according to the statement, said it will deal with the sexual assault case as it deals with any other similar cases.

They also noted that under the law, the privacy of the individuals was of utmost importance.
